SHERIFF CONVICTED OF FALSIFYING JAIL ACCOUNTS IN TOLEDO

Women Jurors Weep; Verdict Follows Stormy Session

TOLEDO, O., June 10.—Charles G. Emmert, former sheriff, today stood convicted of certifying false jail food accounts by a jury which heard his case in Judge Scott Stahl's courtroom and which became a "crying jury" when it returned its verdict after twelve hours and thirty minutes deliberation.

The jury's verdict of guilty on each of four indictments charging the former official with making and presenting fraudulent accounts, came after the panel had ranged from ballots of nine to three for acquittal to the same count for conviction.

Three women members of the panel were on the verge of tears when they took their seats for the reporting of the verdict.

The jury was polled and each juror asserted the verdict was in accordance with his or her opinion with the exception of Mrs. Clara T. Miller, who answered, "well, not quite," and Mrs. Ann M. Leiter, who answered in the negative. Mrs. Kathryn Klons, answered "yes" with obvious reluctance.

The women later agreed the verdicts were theirs as presented and they were accepted by Judge Stahl.

The defendant, his 24-year-old son, Parks, and his brother, Edward, were in the courtroom when the verdicts were read and gathered in Judge Stahl's chambers in a silent, weeping huddle a short time later.

Attorney Robert Phillips, counsel-in-chief for the defendant, asserted he would file a motion for a new trial within the three-day limit prescribed.

Judge Stahl ordered Mr. Emmert be released under the same $5,000 bond on which he has been at liberty until disposition of the motion for a new trial.

SARAZEN WINS BRITISH TITLE

SANDWICH, England, June 10.—Gene Sarazen of New York today won the British open golf championship. His rounds of 70 and 74 today gave him an aggregate of 234.

The issue, all but certain when Sarazen's score of 234 was posted, became certain when Arthur Havers, British pro, failed to get the 70 he needed to tie.

The victory sends the championship across the ocean for the ninth consecutive time.

Sarazen, despite one of the finest records ever compiled by a golfer, had never been able to win the greatest of all tournaments until today. The best he had ever finished before was second, when he was runner-up to Walter Hagen in 1928.

LORAIN OFFICIAL GETS BOMB THREAT

CLEVELAND, O., June 10.—Cleveland police today were assisting in a search for a man who threatened Safety Director William G. Lefever of Lorain in a long distance telephone call from Cleveland.

Lefever said his caller told him that unless he resigned his home would be bombed "like that of your friend, Martin Pazdor." Pazdor is active in politics at Lorain and his home was bombed last week.

Lefever had the long distance call traced and Cleveland police were attempting to find the man who placed the call. A police guard was maintained at Lefever's home.

RELIGIOUS MEET WILL START SOON

COLUMBUS, O., June 10.—The fifteenth annual convention of the World's Christian Fundamentals Association, scheduled to be held here the week of June 19, is expected to draw delegates from every state in the union and from several foreign countries.

Speakers at the convention, closing June 26th, will be men and women recognized as leaders in the field of evangelical Christian work. The Deshler-Wallick Hotel has been chosen as headquarters.

THE CLOCK STOPS

CINCINNATI, O., June 10.—Clarence Johnson, who copies telegraphic news dispatches for the Cincinnati Post, glanced at his ancient clock at 2:01 p. m. Thursday. It was stopped—and thereon hangs a story.

Joseph (Doc) Forbin, once "worked the wire" on which Johnson was working. The men were close friends. Forbin went over to take a telephone job with a racing paper and, deeded his battered clock, from which he had timed many an item from far places in the world, to his successor, Johnson.

A few minutes after the time-piece stopped, Johnson was called to a telephone.

"Doc Forbin is dead, Johnson," came a voice over the wire. "He collapsed at his key, died suddenly."

Johnson returned to his wire. He shook Doc's old clock, then laid it aside reverently—stopped.

COOLIDGE ARTICLE PROTESTS FOREIGN DEBT CANCELLATION

Former President Answers Arguments in Magazine

NEW YORK, June 10.—Calvin Coolidge today answered arguments for foreign debt cancellation by declaring the World War was not a common enterprise and that "each nation should do what it agreed to do. That if we do not collect from Europe, we must collect from our own taxpayers."

The former President's views presented in a Cosmopolitan magazine article entitled "Settling the War Debts."

"No doubt," he said, "it may be argued that the payment was one cause of the present depression. But any such statement lacks convincing proof. We cannot disregard the loss and destruction of the war, the present cost of great armaments, the burden of new social experiments and assess the blame to the relatively small items of debt payments."

Coolidge explained that no European nation except Great Britain had paid any amount that would be said to have any effect on their national finances.

Coolidge maintained the position that the United States was entirely different from that of other allies, because "we are blameless of the origins and the starting of the war."

"The suggestion," he said, "that we should make a large contribution to its cost because we came into it late is equivalent to saying we should pay a fine because we had not been one of the original disturbers of the peace of the world. * * * Instead of being bound to pay them we could make out a case for injuries which we suffered."

Coolidge also expressed his thought on the suggestion that debts be remitted on a percentage of American exports to foreign countries. This plan was advocated by Alfred E. Smith.

In the first place to remit the debts would be a direct subsidy of over a quarter of a billion dollars

FORMAL INQUIRY IN EXPLOSION STARTS

CLEVELAND, O., June 10.—First formal inquiry into the cause of the explosion and fire that destroyed the Ellington Apartments building was started today in a conference between Safety Director Frank Merrick, Fire Chief James E. Granger and Fire Warden Patrick E. Barrett.

Merrick said all data and information brought out in the conference would be turned over to Coroner A. J. Pearce for the inquest.

Meantime, search for further bodies that may be buried in the wreckage of the six story building was resumed today. Ten bodies and part of an 11th body have been recovered.

Fire Warden Barrett indicated he believed the fire was of incendiary origin, and that he would question one man today.

Nutt, Cleveland, treasurer of the national committee, and right is George J. B. Keim, secretary of the national committee. Inset is Raymond Benjamin, G. O. P. delegate from California, and close confidant of President Hoover shown in Chicago.

GOVERNMENT SALARY CUTS ARE OBSTRUCTING ECONOMY BILL

WASHINGTON, June 10.—House and senate conferees on the $149,000,000 economy bill prepared today to fight out again the issue of flat government salary reductions versus payless furloughs.

The senate just before passing the bill substituted the administration furlough plan for a straight 10 per cent cut on all salaries of $1,000 or more. House conferees headed by Rep. McDuffie, Dem., Ala., still favor the direct reduction.

For per diem workers, such as employees receiving more than $1,200 a year and would be equivalent to a reduction in pay of 3.3 per cent. The plan provides that each employee must take a month off during the year without pay. The employee and his superiors would decide how the time would be taken off—half a day each week, or three days at a time, or altogether. The employee could not be laid off for more than five days in any one month without his consent.

For per diem workers, such as those in navy yards, the furlough plan means a straight five-day week.

tion and there is a possibility it may be restored.

Proponents of the furlough assert it would encourage private industry to establish a general five-day week, but would discourage further direct wage cuts. Opponents insist it would result in favoritism and discrimination in the various government departments.

CLERKS OF COURTS NOT EMPOWERED TO ACT COURT DECIDES

Decision Reverses Conviction; Not Practiced Here

COLUMBUS, O., June 10.—Interpreting statutory provisions, following study of a Cleveland case, the Ohio Supreme Court today ruled that clerks of courts do not have the power to issue search warrants.

Under new legislation, the court held, issuance of a warrant is no longer a ministerial act conferred upon a clerk, but a judicial act conferred upon a judge or magistrate.

The opinion was written by Judge Jones and concurred in by Judges Matthias, Day, Allen, Kinade and Stephenson. Chief Justice Marshall did not participate.

The decision was rendered in the case of Nick Nicholas, who was convicted in the Municipal Court of Cleveland on a charge of unlawful possession of liquor in violation of a city ordinance. His conviction and sentence was affirmed by the court of appeals. The proceedings against Nicholas were instituted on an affidavit for search warrant signed by Andrew J. Smith, detective, and sworn to before John Douglas, deputy clerk of the municipal court of Cleveland.

Judgments of the lower courts were reversed today and the case remanded to the municipal court with instructions to "suppress the evidence seized in the unlawful search."

On April 1, 1929, the high court's opinion stated, the state legislature, codifying the criminal procedure of the state, repealed the old and re-enacted a new chapter relating to search warrants. The court held that, since adoption of the new section, no clerk of a court, whether municipal or otherwise, has power to issue a search warrant except by direction to the judge.

"The legislation of 1929," said opinion, "is a general law relating specifically to search warrant procedure."

LATHER FREED OF MURDER CHARGES

CLEVELAND, O., June 10.—Vincent Ianni, 47, lathing contractor, today was cleared of legal responsibility for the killing of two officers of the Lather's Union, whom he shot to death on May 2.

A jury in common pleas court acquitted Ianni of manslaughter in connection with the deaths of Oliver R. Bisler, 40.

Assistant County Prosecutor James P. Hart said no attempt would be made to prosecute Ianni for the death of John Farrar, who also was slain. Ianni testified that the two men came to a house under construction where he was installing lathing and threatened him. A fight followed, he said.

OHIO STATE ALUMNI PLAN CELEBRATION

COLUMBUS, O., June 10.—Alumni of the Ohio State University were participating today in events preliminary to the observance Saturday of the annual "Alumni Day," which will mark the beginning of the university's 55th commencement season.

The program tomorrow will continue until midnight. It will include the 11th annual Intercity Golf Tournament at the Arlington Country Club and a dance in the new men's gymnasium.

STEAL $200,000

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—In one of the boldest robberies ever staged in Philadelphia, two or more men stole $200,000 in negotiable bonds today from the Girard Trust Co.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Rose Mintoff, 35, and Herman Henke, 34.

Marshall Alvin Smith of Chagrin Falls said the double drowning occurred late Wednesday and brought to a tragic end a bathing party in which the victims and another young couple from Cleveland participated.

The couple drowned at a swimming place in the Chagrin River in June.

Bainbridge Twp. Neither could swim and Henke lost his life in a heroic attempt to rescue Mrs. Mintoff, according to Marshall Smith.

Marshall Smith said other members of the party told him Mrs. Mintoff was wading in shallow water and stepped accidentally over a sharp drop off into ten feet of water.

Henke plunged in after her and was dragged beneath the surface by the frantic victim, Marshall Smith said.

Henke was unmarried and was a clerk for an employment agency. Marshall Smith said he had learned Mrs. Mintoff was the mother of two children and that her husband's whereabouts were not known.

AGREES TO RECEIVE REDS IF HONORABLY DISCHARGED AS VET

Dangerous Health Situation Prevails In Camps

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The bonus expeditionary force did a right about face today and decided to admit to its ranks 150 self-proclaimed Communists who arrived last night from Cleveland.

"We are not concerned with the veterans' political or private beliefs," said Walter W. Walters, commander. "If a man has an honorable discharge from the service and lives up to the rules of the camp he is admitted whether he believes in communism or not."

The Communists were guarded last night by camp police and previously individual Communists had been expelled.

The situation regarding Communists was further complicated today when Rev. Charles Coughlin of Detroit sent a check for $5,000 to Robert Burton, attorney instructing him to use the money to help veterans provided no Communist propaganda was circulated at the camp.

Authorities and veterans' leaders also were making valiant efforts to combat dangerous health conditions in the camp.

Dr. James G. Cumming, communicable diseases officer of the health department, declared conditions were worse than he had seen in army camps in Siberia and China. He said he had tried to segregate twenty-three men suffering from severe contagious diseases, but when he returned to the camp he found them mingled again with the army and could not be found.

Police Superintendent Glassford was attempting to obtain Fort Foote, a little-used army post down the Potomac, as a segregation camp.

District of Columbia Health Officer William C. Fowler said the congested and unsanitary conditions were ideal for an outbreak of typhoid fever or dysentery. The men bathe and wash their clothes and cookware in the eastern branch of the Potomac, which Dr. Fowler said was little better than an open sewer.

About 7,000 men now are encamped on the dusty fields of Anacostia. The total in the city is estimated at 8,000. Police say 3,500 more will arrive in the next thirty-six hours.

To relieve the congestion two new camps were opened—at Camp Simms, the National Guard range in Anacostia, and at Camp Meigs, an abandoned post within Washington proper.

The executive committee of the bonus army ordered the seven regimental commanders to have the men set to work at once to build more sanitary shelters and clean up the camp as much as possible.

Commander Walter W. Waters said he agreed with Dr. Fowler that the health situation was menacing "and I shall do my best to eliminate it."

He again appealed for the war department or other authorities to provide tents and equipment.

"None of these men came here with the idea they were going to land in a bed of roses," Waters declared. "We appreciate what has been done for us. But our men must have shelter. They cannot continue to live like animals in a field with nothing but straw and strips of cloth over them."

Police Superintendent Glassford continued to offer the army free transportation homeward. The trucks he provided yesterday went away empty, with jeers resounding in the drivers' ears.

THREE DROWNED IN OHIO STREAMS

CINCINNATI, O., June 10.—The Ohio and Licking Rivers took a toll of three lives here last night.

Alfred Badel, 20, of Covington, Ky., drowned while attempting to swim across the Licking River. Albert Hall, 42, laborer, drowned in the Ohio River when a boat capsized.

His wife saw the tragedy from the river bank.

The body of Miss Clara Wefford, 53, was found in the Ohio River, shortly after she had deliberately walked out into the water. A verdict of suicide was given.

SPEAKER ADDRESSES GUESTS AT MISSIONARY TEA HERE

Miss Margaret Griffith, field worker for the American-European Fellowship, with headquarters at Philadelphia, gave an interesting address on "The Crux of the World's Situation" before a group of forty-five women who were entertained at a missionary tea at the home of Mrs. H. E. Eavey, W. Third St., Thursday afternoon.

The fellowship's mission field is in central Europe and Russia. In her talk Miss Griffith said: "Roger Babson said, 'Unless a revival comes in America and Europe we will go into worse times economically.' Communism which is God's judgment against the state and church in Russia has been so overruled of Him to bring about a great revival. Thirteen years ago there were 6,000 Protestants in Russia. Today, through martyrdom, persecution and distress there are at least 3,000,000,000."

Miss Griffith then explained how disaster threatens Europe today and in conclusion said, "We see the way to avoid disaster in Europe is the old gospel way of coming back to God and thus preserve peace and tranquility in our nation, and bringing the old gospel to Europe in her crisis hour." Tea was served at the conclusion of Miss Griffith's talk.

"ALL-BRAN LIVES UP TO REPUTATION" Her Constipation Overcome by This Delicious Cereal

If you are troubled with constipation, read Miss Bundy's enthusiastic letter:

"I would like to congratulate the one who discovered ALL-BRAN. It really does live up to its reputation when it is said to 'relieve constipation.'"

"I used to feel poor all the time—just down and out—and after reading an advertisement in a magazine about ALL-BRAN I got a box. It has evermore helped me, and it is not hard at all to eat."—Miss Mary Bundy, Bennettsville, S. C.

Laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN brings two things needed to correct common constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears the intestines of wastes.

How much safer than taking pills and drugs—so often harmful. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. Two tablespoons daily will overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal, or in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A true witness delivereth souls; but a deceitful witness speaketh lies. — Proverbs, xiv, 25.

SO DAWES RESIGNS

When Gen. Charles G. Dawes took the presidency of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, it was understood that he consented to do so temporarily. In announcing without previous warning that he now resigns so that he can turn his attention to private affairs in Chicago, Gen. Dawes does so with the declaration that he considers his work and duty in Washington finished, since Federal finances are being put in order by Congress, and a definite upturn of business is at hand. In support of his view, and in proof of the state of efficiency in which he leaves the R. F. C., he points to the fact that bank closings have decreased to what is normal for ordinary times.

And this, it seems to us, is sufficient explanation of the action of Gen. Dawes without dragging in exaggerated rumors about differences of judgment between the General and Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of the Corporation. Probably there were differences. It is to be hoped that there were, for it is through presentation of various points of view that clarification is reached in any difficult and intricate situation.

In any event, and this is what is really important, Gen. Dawes quits Washington on a note of confidence which has the ring of sincerity, and is the more convincing because, while he sometimes leaves a position abruptly, he is not in the habit of shirking a duty or leaving a job half finished, however difficult it may be.

It is very well known, too, that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is running with smoothness and efficiency and is being left in good hands. It is doing its part. The remainder rests with Congress.

If that body will pass the sort of economy bill it ought to pass, and will then clean the decks generally and go home, leaving with President Hoover any special authority the times may require, everything will have been done that can be done for the present, and the Nation can face the summer and autumn with good heart.

"I SERVE" OR "YOUR MAN"

The British royal family changed its surname from Wettin to Windsor during the World War. The English Battenbergs became the Mountbattens. But the German words, "Ich dien," were permitted to stand as the motto of the Prince of Wales.

Now, as preparations are being made for a royal tournament at Olympia, in England, a pageant of the birth of the first Prince of Wales is to be included. Those who have compiled the episode claim that the words of the prince's motto should really be "Eich dyn," meaning "Your man," instead of "Ich dien," for which the translation is "I serve."

The legend upon which the pageant is based has it that Edward the First hastened to Carnarvon to tell the assembled Welsh chieftains of the birth of his son. The Welsh had longed for a native prince. At his news, they assured Edward of their willingness to submit to a prince born within their country, a prince of blameless life and free from prejudices. Whereupon Edward presented the baby to them, exclaiming in imperfect Welsh, "Eich dyn."

Although there is no report that Wales intends to alter the motto, if there is truth in the legend it would at least be consistent for H. R. H. to have a Welsh motto accompanying his title as Prince of Wales. This would also gratify the pride of the Welsh people in historic associations between their country and the royal heir. Beyond this there is little inspirational choice between the implications of "I serve," as applied to a prince, and the note of fealty in "Your man."

JUSTICE IN BRITAIN

The law's delays and costs are so proverbially resistant to reform that credit attaches to a committee under Lord Chancellor Sankey which has succeeded in doing something to make justice more accessible in Britain. Their reform came into force on May 24. It is directed to shortening trials and discouraging appeals in a large number of commercial cases not involving charges of fraud.

The tribunal especially affected is what is known as the "King's Bench Division." Here two judges have been specially told off to dispose of suits by a greatly simplified procedure. The court is empowered to dispense with juries, reduce the number of witnesses, fix time-tables for the completion of preliminaries and generally to short-circuit procrastination.

The judges remain as before, thereby assuring to the litigants continuation of the high standard of impartiality characteristic of British courts. The justice dispensed may be of a more rough and ready character than under the elaborate procedure hitherto adopted, but the ordinary merchant is not likely to object to this if he finds his pocket and his time alike saved. The reform has come none too soon. The London Chamber of Commerce has long been pressing for some such arrangement in view of what it has found to be delays so great and costs so heavy as to have seriously discouraged resort to the courts.

It is reasonable to hope that the reform may ultimately be extended to cover criminal as well as civil justice.

COMMUNISM

The House of Representatives suspended its rules on Monday in order the more quickly to enact the Dies bill to expel and exclude alien Communists from the United States. The Communists themselves have invited this reaction to their attempts to capitalize distress by turning it into disorder.

Communism is a destructive movement, which bores from within and will foul any organization that tolerates it. The American Federation of Labor has had to fight to keep Communism out of its ranks. The American Legion now has a similar fight on its hands. Communist tactics are to mingle with gatherings of unemployed, attack the police and thus provoke the latter to fire into the innocent, who cannot be distinguished in a crowd from the guilty. So the Communist leaders hope to incite antagonism to constituted authority and its representatives. The unemployed workers of this Country deserve great credit for having accepted their share of the general distress, without allowing Communist orators to occasion more breaches of the peace.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK.—The Run of the Town:

It is possible to do almost all the things of every-day life without emerging from underground in New York. . . . But who'd want to? . . . You can eat, sleep, get shaved, buy books and magazines and enter the George M. Cohan theater without coming up for air out of the subway. . . . You can even buy flowers.

"Hey, Nonny, Nonny," is a show title which somehow excites the interest without making those who don't know anything definite of the piece want to attend. . . . Three of the best musicals New York ever felt her to be running here now simultaneously: "Face the Music," "Of Three I Sing" and the revived "Show Boat!" . . . Helen Morgan is thinner; Paul Whitehead is reported gaining weight again. . . . I find myself interested in such statistics since I put on that extra four pounds last week. . . .

I lived in New York three years before I saw a cemetery. . . . Princess Matchless looks just as you expected her to, from the name. . . . I waited an hour outside the office of a Manhattan radio executive the other mid-day, to take him to a luncheon-interview, finally giving way and walking past the protesting girl at the desk into the inner sanctum. . . . The exec and a party of his assistants were watching the antics of Felix the Cat, projected by an amateur movie outfit. . . .

SUMMER GOTHAM

These are organ-grinder days and gypsy fortune-telling days. . . . Long, dark touring cars whisk through the streets bearing huge families of Romanians bound for new booth locations in the metropolitan area. . . . Have you ever seen a delegation of those multi-colored wanderers ensconced in a closed car? . . . I am assured that the gypsies are the only race of the so-called civilized world who haven't suffered from depression-itis. . . . They own no securities—except, maybe, a poster or two of purely ornamental oil stock—patronize no banks and invest in nothing. . . . They're silly, all the same, to act that way. . . .

Seven cities claim Ann Harding as their local product. . . . They all have grounds, too, for Ann was the daughter of an army officer, and traveled about from pillar to post with the family, picking up her schooling as she went. . . . Joining the super-uptight Bath and Tennis club of Rye, N. Y., makes it ominously probable that someone will be trying to get me into a full-dress uniform next fall. . . . I'll hold out at that last stand with all the strength I have. . . .

BUDDY'S PLACE

By California

The nickel piano hurls against the night
Its choking, garbled ecstasy of song;
At 3 o'clock the drunks will start a fight
In Buddy's place, with its gay, lumpy throng.

The battered piano sinks now into sleep,
And Buddy turns the gas-light very low;
Cheer, Mothers, weep not that such nights should creep
From the dead days to set your boy aglow!

NEBRASKA SENATOR PLEADS FOR AID OF FARMER BEFORE CONGRESS QUILTS

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal
Written for Central Press

Once every day in the senate, Robert Beecher Howell catches the eye of the vice president, is given the floor, and proceeds to tell the senators that something must be done for agriculture before congress adjourns.

Who is Senator Howell? Most people outside Nebraska would hardly know, for he is somewhat overshadowed by the more prominent figure of his colleague, "Gumming George" Norris. Nevertheless, Howell is a useful legislator, and is regarded by agriculture as one of its reliable friends.

Whether the daily message will have ceased by the time you read these lines, of course I can't say. It would be safe to assume that if it has, it will be because the senate has actually undertaken to "do something for the farmer," and for no other reason. Even the senate, its collective mind harassed with a thousand problems and difficulties, can be made to heed by a campaign like this.

POEMS THAT LIVE

YOUNG AND OLD
When all the world is young, lad,
And all the trees are green
And every goose a swan, lad,
And every lass a queen;
Then hey for boot and horse, lad,
And round the world away:
Young blood must have its course, lad,
And every dog his day.

When all the world is old, lad,
And all the trees are brown;
And all the sport is stale, lad,
And all the wheels run down;
Creep home, and take your place
In the spent and maimed among;
God grant you find one face there
You loved when all was young.
—Charles Kingsley (1819-1875)

WOMEN'S LONGING

From "Women Pleased"
Tell me what is that only thing
For which all women long;
Something that most of them desire
To have it does them wrong?

'Tis not to be chaste, nor fair,
(Such gifts malice may impair),
Richly trimmed to walk or ride,
Or to wanton unspied,
To preserve an honest name
And so to give it up in shame.
These are toys. In good or ill
They desire to have their will;
Yet, when they have it, they abuse it,
For they know not how to use it.
—John Fletcher (1579-1625)

Jellied Beet and Cucumber Salad

Orange Ice Box Cake Tea
Do you always know just what to do with your leftover pieces of cake? If not, here is one method of making them into a savory dish that the family will enjoy.

Today's Recipes
Steak Croquettes.—Leftover beef steak, few stalks celery, one egg, salt and pepper, sweet milk, bread crumbs. Put steak and all but one stalk of celery through food chopper. Add remaining stalk of celery, cut in fine pieces, egg lightly beaten and seasonings. Add enough milk to mold croquettes in shape. Shape into cones, roll in fine bread crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve with catsup or chili sauce.

Jellied Beet and Cucumber Salad.—One and one-half tablespoon gelatin, one-third cup cold water, one cup hot water, one-third cup sugar, three tablespoons lemon juice, one tablespoon vinegar, one and one-half teaspoon horseradish, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup diced beets, three-fourths cup diced cucumber. Soften gelatin in cold water. Dissolve in boiling water, which may be the beet liquor. Add sugar and stir until sugar and gelatin are dissolved. Add lemon juice, vinegar, horseradish and salt. Season well and sweeten to taste. Chill until the jelly starts to congeal. Add beets and cucumbers. Turn into molds and chill thoroughly. If desired, two to three tablespoons chopped green pepper may be added.

Orange Ice Box Cake.—One and one-half tablespoon gelatin, one-fourth cup cold water, one-half cup boiling water, one cup sugar, few grains salt, one cup orange juice, two tablespoons lemon juice, three egg whites, one cup cream. Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve in boiling water. Add sugar and salt and cool. Stir in orange and lemon juice and add a bit of grated orange rind. Chill until the jelly starts to congeal. Have molds lined with lady fingers, vanilla wafers or strips of sponge cake. Fold orange mixture into stiffly beaten egg whites and one-half the amount of cream, also whipped stiff. Turn into the mold or molds and chill until firm. Serve garnished with remainder of cream and fresh strawberries.

New Lemon Chiffon Pie
Three-fourths cup sugar, juice of one and one-half lemons and the grated rind of one-half lemon, four eggs, separated; one-half tablespoon gelatin dissolved in one-third cup cold water, one-third cup sugar. In the top of double boiler cook until thick like custard, the three-fourths cup sugar, juice and rind of lemons, and the beaten egg yolks. When thick add the dissolved gelatin and mix thoroughly. Let cool. Fold in the egg whites beaten stiff with the one-third cup sugar. Pour into a baked pie shell and place in the refrigerator for three or four hours. If desired, serve with whipped cream.

Catty is the unit of weight largely used throughout Chinese and Malayan Asia, and by the Chinese all over the world.

Parents May Affect Tot's Eating

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Being a modern parent is getting to be a full time job. Not only are the ancient inalienable rights of the parent to provide the child with food, clothes, housing and other necessities still operative and even more burdensome than ever, but nowadays the parent is supposed to know the sciences of psychology, nutrition, dietetics, immunology and several others.

A recent article by Ada Hart Arlitt in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association furnishes some sound hints for parents in influencing the child's attitude toward its food.

Conditioning the child against wholesome food is very easy. Some little care and forethought will prevent mistakes in this respect. For instance, if a child is on a diet, sharp warnings avoid the foods that are prescribed will result in antagonizing the child against those foods forever. Miss Arlitt suggests that a more wholesome manner of directing would be to say: "Eat all these foods that you have on the list and this will make you so well that you can eat all these delicious things."

Too severe insistence may result in the attitude of the little girl who was taken by her uncle to a restaurant. "What will you have to eat?" he inquired. "Anything just so it's not good for me," was the answer.

One of the strongest emotional drives in childhood is to be noticed. Some children find that the best way to do this is not to eat. In one family a long grim, battle between mother and an aunt on one side, and a little boy who would not eat unless he was urged and coaxed and begged, was terminated when the father gave orders that no one was to notice whether the child ate or not.

During the first meal at which this policy was carried out, nothing happened for ten minutes and then the culprit announced in a hurt tone, "I'm not eating." "Is that so?" was all the satisfaction he got. Finally he burst into tears saying: "Nobody pays any attention to me any more when I don't eat." But he ate without coaxing afterwards.

Taking science too hard is the cause of a great deal of difficulty. It is not necessary to give the child a completely balanced dietary at each meal. Dr. Hedger has stated that a large proportion of feeding problems have arisen because of the anxiety of the parent to force the child to eat a completely perfect set of foods at each meal. The parental worry is transferred to the child and nothing is so antagonistic to good digestion as worry.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
G. B.: "Is trench mouth curable? Is trench mouth contagious? What is the treatment? Can the teeth be saved?"
Answer: Trench mouth in most instances is entirely curable. It is slightly contagious. The treatment consists in both medical applications of antiseptic solutions to kill the germs and mechanical treatment by dentistry. The teeth can almost always be saved.

Girl Loses Her Heart

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

It's a startling thing to have it brought home to one how very close to the surface are our primitive passions and impulses. We may consider ourselves very civilized, even sophisticated. But scratch us a little and we become as savage as ever our ancestors were.

One young woman who, to her surprise and chagrin, has been made to realize this fact, writes me as follows:
"Dear Virginia Lee: I have lost my head and my senses clear through. Please help me to regain my equilibrium."

"About two months ago I met some one by chance, and it has changed almost a quarter of a century of model living.
"I am an average girl with a home environment of rather strong discipline. My brothers have an exalted opinion of their sister. Most of my many friends really are my friends. Perhaps it is due to my home background that no one has ever kissed me other than on my hand or forehead. Probably if this incident had not happened I would be sprouting wings.

"It was so wonderful to have some one that was not afraid of me. I would not dare invite him to my home. He looks all that he is, vigorous, unkept, lies, uses poor grammar. What is the matter with me? Please understand how wonderful it is to have some one make you FEEL. At first I was frightened, then surprised, shocked, then grew accustomed to many things, even tried to understand why a man strikes a woman."

"Next I felt that since I cannot live my life for those at home, why can't I live a life of my own? His feeling for me is terrific, and his reaction on me is similar.
"We had decided to get married, but though all the time he told me he was living alone with a dog, I have found out that he is married. He claims that he is living with a woman and it is perfectly all right for him to leave her. But isn't that like stealing, to take something that belongs to another?"

"Why didn't he tell me all this at first? Am I going mad with love? Or is it just passion? I did so want a home, family and LIFE! Please tell me how to cure myself. I'm going insane with this mess I've got myself into, with someone of this calibre."

"Then he deliberately went and took my girl friend out to spite me. He hasn't called me since nor come to see me."

"Virginia, what will I do? How can I get him back?"
"Heartbroken G. Lassie."

Sit tight, sister. The boy naturally is jealous. Give him time and he'll probably come around. Just now he feels that you owe him an explanation. It was quite a blow, you must admit, for him to come to see you and find another chap there. If it had been the other way around—you had found him with an old girl friend—what would you have done and how acted?

"Then he deliberately went and took my girl friend out to spite me. He hasn't called me since nor come to see me."

SURRENDER TO HIGH SCHOOL TEAM AFTER SHARP ENGAGEMENT

Central Maintains Authority Over Soldiers 7 To 3

Itinerary of Steve Phillips, popular Xenia starting judge of harness races, and sometimes running races, is just about completed for the 1932 summer campaign, he has revealed.

Steve's first assignment this season was to be steward at a running meet sponsored recently at Ravenna, O., after which he acted as starter at Urbana, O., for a three-day harness racing card that initiated the Ohio Short Ship Circuit program for the current year.

Now he announces he has been engaged once more to handle the flag and send the pacers and trotters away at the Ohio State Fair next fall.

Steve will also be in charge of all the Short Ship meets, at the Toledo, Goshen, Indianapolis and Lexington, Ky. Grand Circuit races. In addition, he will have the honor of sending them away in the $50,000 Hambletonian State to be raced at Goshen. Besides he is booked at Wapakoneta, O. and at Wilmington, Del.

Trainer Joe Hagler, Xenia, who joined the Wilmington colony last winter, intends to make his first start of the year with his speedy pacer, Ray Henley, 2:01 1/2, at the Ellyria, O., meet, which opens Monday, June 20. He will also start Betty S., 2:09 1/2, there. Ray Henley, according to reports, wiggled in 2:01 in his last workout. Joe also clocked Jimmy Henley, a green pacer, in 2:13.

Nat N. Hunter, the Jamestown sportsman, has another future racing great in harness circles, it is declared. This promising one arrived a few days ago. It was sired by Lauderdale and the dam was by the Great McGregor.

Getting back to Steve Phillips again, the Xenia starter let it be known Wednesday that the new electrically operated barrier device he has perfected, will be given a practical trial for the first time next week at night harness races in Mansfield, O.

Steve will officiate at a six-night Short Ship meeting there, starting Monday evening.

Providing the new barrier proves acceptable, as Steve is sure it will, the contrivance may also be installed for the later meeting at Ellyria, O., and for other succeeding race meets this summer.

For the third straight time this season Central High School exercised a complete authority over Company L's National Guard softball team in an American League contest that brought the Buccaneers a 7 to 3 triumph Thursday night at Cox Field.

If it were possible for Central to arrange to play no other team than the militia every week, it is a safe bet the Bucs would win the league title in a walk, and the high school probably regrets the impossibility of conducting the league on a large basis.

Central's victory was, to a large degree, made possible by the pitching and batting of Eddie Luttrell, who allowed nine hits, struck out five batters and was invincible after the third inning. He blanked the National Guard in the last six innings, and sparkling support assisted him to the cause.

At bat the Buccaneer hurler smacked two doubles, driving in one run in the fifth round and starting a two-run rally with his second double in the eighth.

"Lefty" Lane, pitching for Company L, was not nearly so effective as usual, and Central batters familiarized themselves with his southpaw output to the extent of eleven hits, including three extra base knocks.

The outlook was rosy for the militia in the first three innings, the guardsmen scoring one run in the second and two more in the third to offset a single tally earned by Central in the first inning.

Luttrell's single, an outfield fly, a passed ball and another fly to the outer garden resulted in a run for Central in the fourth, and the Bucs evened the score in the fifth on a walk to Confer, a passed ball and the first of Ed Luttrell's brace of two-base blows.

The deadlock was broken in the seventh when a double by "Red" Luttrell and Hyman's single, along with an out at first, gave the Bucs two more runs. Just to make sure, Central scored twice more in the eighth on another of Ed Luttrell's doubles and consecutive singles by Creamer, Fred Dalton and Latimer.

The guardsmen played errorless ball until the ninth, when two fielding misplays materialized. They did not prove costly, however, a double play squelching the situation. Only one error was charged to Central.

GRIP YOUR CLUB PROPERLY TO GAIN CONTROL OF SHOT

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is No. 26 of a series of golf lessons by Alex Morrison, golf's star teacher. These lessons appear in The Gazette. Watch for the next.

By ALEX J. MORRISON
Golf's Foremost Technician
Written Exclusively for Central Press and The Gazette.

"CONTROL!" That's the big idea in golf.

Every player wants to drive a long ball and get plenty of distance with his iron, but he also wants all of his shots to fly straight. In fact, I believe the majority of players would actually prefer direction to distance in most of their shots.

No doubt, you have long since learned that the ball must travel in an almost direct line if you are to make a respectable score. You know, too, that this matter of direction depends upon your control over the striking angle of the clubface. But you are not so sure about what helps or hinders you in acquiring proper control.

For example, you know that both the hands should be in power in the matter of holding and swinging the club. Obviously, this involves the manner of placing the hands on the club. The main object of all grips is to afford control of the club.

Like this, in order to gain proper control the left hand must grasp the club as firmly as the right. Here many golfers sacrifice direction in their shots through an oversight in gripping the club. They grip the club so near the top of the shaft that their left hands cannot keep a firm hold on the club during the swing.

In gripping any club the left little finger should be placed a couple of inches or more down from the top of the shaft. This will give you the feel of the club in both hands and afford you better control, particularly in playing long shots.

Next—The Pivot.

BETTER EFFORTS TO UNDERSTAND YOUTH URGED BY SPEAKER

the parents, who, while complaining that their children will not listen to them, themselves "do not hear their children."

"Get behind the youth," he said. "See things through their eyes. Surely, it seems to me, that while there is necessity for the balance of age, one must not forget that this generation would not be, if it were not for the adventurous spirit with which God filled our youth."

Failure to properly direct youth in the home was criticized. "The great value of schooling," he said, "is not in the school, but in the home, and if you have no training there in the things which touch the heart, little does it matter how you educate your children in the things which will help them to earn a living."

Addressing his remarks to the graduating class, he spoke of necessity for a more sympathetic understanding between parents and children, "not as a panacea for all ills," but as an aid, with assistance of prayer, in attaining a more perfect relationship."

Following the address, Rev. Lawrence G. Wessel, pastor of St. Bridget's Church, spoke briefly, impressing upon the class members their duty as Christian men and women in the world. He announced that Miss Elizabeth Hoog was the winner of the scholarship to Mt. St. Joseph-on-the-Ohio, girls' school conducted by the Sisters of Charity, annually offered to a graduate of the school by the sisters. Father Wessel presented diplomas to the five graduates: Misses Ruth Killen, Elizabeth Hoog and Edna Galliger, and John King and Joseph Zenni.

Commencement exercises were held in St. Bridget's Church, and the ceremonies were preceded by a student procession into the church from the school, members of the graduating class, each with a small child attendant, leading the girl graduates who wore white or sandie frocks, white hats and each carried an armful of roses. The boys wore dark coats with white trousers. Children attending the girls as maids were: Jane Hannifan for Miss Killen; Margaret Hornick for Miss Hoog and Harriet Jordan for Miss Galliger. Louis and William Smith, tiny twin brothers were pages for the boys.

"Praise Ye the Father" was sung by the student group at the procession into the church by Miss Dorothy Clemmer at the organ. The ceremonies closed with benediction with the Blessed Sacrament, with Rev. David Powers of Dayton, former pastor of St. Bridget's Church, officiating, and Rev. John Stedman of Dayton, the commencement speaker, Rev. Warren Hook and Father Wessel participating.

Singing of the Te Deum closed the service. The altars of the church were decked with flowers, and lighted with many tapers.

APPOINT RESIDENT CHAPLAIN AT HOME; TO NAME COTTAGES

Rev. C. E. Hankins, Ironton, O., has been employed by the board of trustees to serve as resident chaplain at the O. S. and S. O. Home here.

Assuming his new duties July 1, Rev. Hankins will have charge of religious education and direct all other services of a religious nature at the state institution.

In past years, before the new position was created, the institution has depended entirely upon ministers of various Xenia churches to conduct religious exercises.

The trustee board, at its June meeting here Thursday night, also authorized the substitution of proper names for the present numerical designation of the thirty-four cottages on the Home grounds.

A list of names had previously been compiled and submitted to the board for approval by a committee representing the G. A. R., Spanish War Veterans, American Legion and the Ex-Pupils' Association. The cottages are to be named after prominent figures in the three wars.

All members of the trustee board were present and remained at the institution over night.

per year to the government of the foreign countries made for the assumed purpose of inducing their people to trade with our people.

"But how can we be assured it would be expended here. The natural place for them to buy goods would be where the price was lowest. Our taxes would be higher because the bonds we issued to get money to lend Europe must be paid. That would increase the cost of our production."

Coolidge summed up the argument with the statement that if we "wished to go into the subsidy business we could find concerns on our own soil where we could make the operation much more profitable."

"I know," Coolidge said in referring to terms of settlement, "we were not trying to overreach anybody nor trying to drive a hard bargain. The money we furnished we had to borrow. Some one must pay it. It cannot be cancelled. If we do not collect it from Europe we must collect it from our own taxpayers."

Coolidge's article did not refer to prohibition as first claimed in the house of representatives yesterday by Rep. Emanuel Celler, Dem., N. Y., who said the former President would condemn prohibition. Celler later said the dry law criticism would appear in the August issue.

John Randolph Hearst, vice-president of the Cosmopolitan corporation, said it was against the concern's policy to discuss contents of future issues.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., June 10.—Cosmopolitan is denying the rumor "was the only statement which came from the office of Calvin Coolidge here today on the report Coolidge would come out against prohibition in the August issue. Harry Ross, Coolidge's secretary, declined to amplify the statement.

Bring Them In!

THE Sunday Schools of America reach less than half the boys and girls between the ages of five and twenty. This is one of the chief reasons why 45,000,000 people of twelve years and upwards in America are not now members of any church. Our national Sunday School enrollment should be more than doubled to reach these boys and girls. Can we not help meet this nation-wide need by bringing many of these young people into our own Sunday School? Out of over four thousand boys brought before Judge Fawcett of Brooklyn, charged with various crimes, only three were members of a Sunday School at the time the crime was committed. Religious education is the only ultimate cure of crime.

Be At Church Sunday

Parents: The Sunday School is the only organization which offers a definite, systematic attempt to guide the child's mind and the child's heart to the kingdom of God. Can you afford not to give your children the benefit of its training? Take them to Sunday School tomorrow.

To the Stranger in Our Midst: Come with us to Church tomorrow. Why? Because the Church is the business of making men and women—give it the support of your presence.

BELLBROOK

The local softball outfit after administering two crushing defeats to the Waynesville "Quakers" on the home ground, journeyed to Waynesville and defeated them last Wednesday evening by a score of 13 to 12 after the "Quakers" had wasted every ounce of energy at their command to stem the tide that had set in against them. To say that the Bellbrook team was far superior to their rivals would be putting it very lightly. However, the home team did fairly well, considering the undeveloped raw material of which it was made up and had the two home umpires been more obedient to their pathetic appeals for help after they had already given the limit, the result might have been different. All the mistakes of the two indicator men favored the home team, and the victors can truthfully say that it was a case of beating ten players, plus two umpires. Out of ten

THE Sacred Eye By BRUCE E. GRIGGS A Story of Mystery and Love in The South Seas

CHAPTER 32

FOR A MOMENT Pauo sat silent. Apparently she was pmarralling her facts in sequence. Then she continued:

"Shortly before my great-grandfather was ready to sail his wife died. In those days sailing ships were slow and he planned to be gone on his long voyage around the Horn some two years. He had one son, Peter, my grandfather, and because he didn't want to leave the boy alone for that length of time, he brought him on the voyage.

"Sailing was one of the principal occupations of the New England coast towns in those days and captains usually tried to make good sailors of their sons, so that when they passed on, the ships and the business stayed in the family. Any way he brought young Peter along—"

"Where do you get what you know of this story?" Ione asked.

"It comes through by grandfather, Peter," Pauo replied. "He was adopted by the children's chief here, but I'll come to that shortly. Anyhow, trade must have been brisk among the islands for back in those days before the Shadow of the White Man had fallen here, the islands were populated by some 200,000 people—healthy, happy and carefree. Nature was bountiful and they lived close to her. Shortly his cargo was sold.

"He had been trading for pearls. The people here had no idea of their value in the markets of the world. What is common is always held cheaply and they were better satisfied with a knife or a colored glass bead or something that was rare, that they couldn't make or obtain.

"When the last of his cargo was gone he had a very rich collection. Being a canny Yankee he had the foresight to bring a jeweler along, so he knew what he was getting.

"Somewhere on his travels he had picked up a knowledge of Nu, the most powerful of all the old Polynesian gods. All the islands had their own gods, but Nu was the most powerful, the most sacred—sort of celestial generalissimo for all the islands—and had an island all to himself, which was the dwelling place of only Nu and his priests. It was there that the chiefs and kings were buried.

"None of the lally dared set foot on this island—only the priests and the temple attendants," she continued.

"And that island was—?" Holmes prompted.

"Tarea," Pauo said softly.

"We had sort of gathered as much," Tom said. "The log gave its exact position in degrees, minutes and seconds. But go on, I didn't mean to interrupt."

"This all-powerful god, Nu, was an all-seeing god, and his eye was in form, color and texture, which was studded in his forehead," Pauo continued.

"Grandfather Whitney heard of this repeatedly on his travels through the various islands. The constant repetition of this story fired him with a lust to get possession of the gem. To him these people were just heathen and the power of their great stone idol, Nu, held no terror for him. He figured that it couldn't be very well protected if the island was only guarded by priests and temple attendants.

"His cargo having been disposed of, he finally made the bold decision, as a coupe de grace, to raid the temple and capture the eye of Nu. He had a crew of twenty men, and he figured that properly armed they could swoop down suddenly, grab the jewel, and sail away for home. The crew had been promised a share in the spoils."

"Is anything known about the history of this jewel?" Pilly asked.

"Where it originally came from?" The legend of course, was that it came from heaven with Nu," Pauo replied. "It had been there for centuries. It must have been a marvelous gem, for pearls have been found in these lagoons for thousands of years and consequently the people were accustomed to making rare finds. It must have been indeed a perfect pearl to have warranted deifying it as the eye of the most high god."

Pauo paused thoughtfully for a moment. "You know," she said, "the Polynesians are a very old race. There are people on these islands who have accurate records of their family ancestry dating back more than 4,000 years. They are of Caucasian extraction as far as can be determined. Twenty centuries before Christ they had developed a civilization fitted to this climate and their needs—but I am getting away from my story."

"Well, Great-Grandfather Whitney raided the temple. In the night he lost about half of his crew, but the priests and temple attendants were wiped out. He grabbed the pearl which was held in a sort of cup in Nu's forehead and managed to get back to his ship.

"Meanwhile, from here on Moatonga, which back in those days was heavily populated, they had seen the great sails of the high old square rigger but in at Tarea. That was sacred territory, and so immediately they organized an expedition of all big war canoes and started racing across to investigate."

"He was just getting his ship underway when that armada of war canoes pounced on him. There was a savage fight when the island people found that the temple had been desecrated, as they could see by the bodies of crew and priests lying at the foot of the cliff and in the cove which runs in between the peaks."

"The fight lasted a long time. The hull of the ship was high, making it difficult to board from the canoes. It was all the surviving members of the crew could do to keep the island warriors knocked off as they managed to come over the side, as they did every time they could get one of their bark ropes fastened to something on deck by snaring or lassoing it. As the battle went on the islanders managed to kill one of the crew from time to time.

"Meanwhile, the islanders had been working steadily to smash the ship's hull down under the stern where they were protected from above. Finally they succeeded and water began to pour into the hold. The ship started to settle. The list of the ship at last became great enough so that the iron strong-box slid across the floor of the cabin bringing up key side to the bulkhead. Peter remembered that and later profited by it.

"When great-grandfather saw what was happening he shouted to Ansel Van Syke, the mate, to get the ship's log. Which was kept in a watertight tin container, the medicine kit, the sextant and a small compass and to arm the men with knives. There were only six of them still alive and he knew they would be boarded now at any minute, because the list was ringing the rail low in the water. There was no possibility of keeping the ship from sinking.

"Peter was with his father and the mate in the cabin when the order was given to make ready to abandon. His father tied the watertight box containing the ship's log, the sextant and the small compass around the mate's neck; another watertight metal container, in which was a Bible and a box of matches, around the boy's neck and the metal medicine kit around his own.

"All this while, even during the battle, great-grandfather had been holding the big black pearl safely in his hand, the boy remembered. Suddenly he opened it, and studied the gem for a moment as though speculating on the safest place to carry it. A thought seemed to occur to him, and reaching up he plucked out his glass which he had worn for years, for an instant compared the size of the eye and the pearl, and then slipped the pearl in the socket and pocketed the eye."

Rome Burns Once More As Nero Does His Chore

Paramount will gamble heavily on Cecil B. DeMille's new religious drama, "The Sign of the Cross."

In addition to constructing huge sets, they are assigning Frederic March, one of their ace stars, to play a young prefect of Rome in this story of early Christian martyrs.

March goes into the picture after he completes his role opposite Norma Shearer in "Smiling Through," the talkie revival of the old Norma Talmadge — Eugene O'Brien silent masterpiece. The new film is scheduled to start the first of next month.

FREDERIC MARCH

"The Sign of the Cross" will give DeMille a free hand to exercise his flair for massive production value. Starting off with the burning of Rome while Nero (Charles Laughton) plays his celebrated violin accompaniment, the film will offer such thrills as a chariot race, a battle, the inevitable orgy, scenes at the Roman baths and at the sacrificial arena.

DeMille is happy about it all and is communicating his enthusiasm to the rest of the studio. One of his chief purposes will be to depict Christian martyrs for the first time as human beings instead of suicidal saints bent on finding someone to boil them in oil.

The Fox studio has changed its mind about Sally Eilers next picture. Instead of doing "Walking Down Broadway" with Jimmy Dunn, she'll be the big attraction

Latest Broadway actress to cast her lot with the talkies is Mayo Methot. Columbia has just signed her to play opposite Adolphe Menjou in "Murder of the Night Club Lady." Miss Methot was last seen on the west coast as the Salvation Army lassie in "Torch Song."

When RKO needed an eight-year-old son for Roscoe Ates, the stutter expert, the studio sent out a call for a boy with a "free-wheeling tongue." Applicants stormed the studios. Many mothers explained that since they were unable to make their sons stop imitating Ates for fun they might as well make some money out of it.

Monte Blue has completed "The Stoker," his first starring picture for Allied Pictures. He will do another of four contracted specials in the near future after a stage appearance in "The Barker".

Tiffany has purchased the film rights to "The Last Mile" and plans to use the prison drama for an early release.

Twenty Years '12- Ago -'32

Mr. Edmund Munger, teacher at Jacksonville Conservatory, Jacksonville, Ill., who arrived home Friday, will leave in several days for New York. He will also go to Providence, R. I., to attend a reunion of his class in Brown University.

Master Frederick Schell is spending a few days in Wilmington.

Mr. Dales Kyle, of the Citizens National Bank, is spending a part of a week's vacation attending the Springfield Horse Show.

Messrs. H. L. Sayre, W. H. Grotendick and George Tiffany returned home from Lewistown Reservoir, where they caught more than 100 fish Monday. They drove back in four hours.
